

Topic

Control of a population of insects (2) - population dynamics (approximately every twenty days) As the population grows, the number of insects per unit area will increase. The population will eventually reach a steady state.

Control of a population of insects (2) - population dynamics (approximately every twenty days) As the population grows, the number of insects per unit area will increase. The population will eventually reach a steady state.